

Century Title Insurance Agency, Corp.

PRIVACY POLICY

Attorneys, like other professionals who advise on personal financial matters or who provide real estate settlement services, are now required by a new Federal law to inform their clients (customers) of their policies regarding privacy of client information. Attorneys have been and continue to be bound by professional standards of conduct that are even more stringent than those required by this new law. Therefore, we have always protected your right to privacy.

Types of Nonpublic Personal Information We Collect

We collect nonpublic personal information about you from the following sources:

- Information we receive from you, such as your personal financial information, your name, address, telephone number, or social security;
- Information about your transactions with us, or others. We receive this information from your lender, accountant, attorney, real estate broker, etc.;
- Information we receive about you that is obtained by us with your authorization; and
- Information from public records.

Parties to Whom We Disclose Information

For current and former clients, we do not disclose any nonpublic personal information obtained in the course of our practice to individuals or entities outside our firm except:

- As authorized or directed by you;
- As necessary to provide services requested by you or your lender; or
- As required or permitted by law.

We restrict access to nonpublic personal information about you to personnel within our firm who need that information to provide products or services to you or to fulfill your transaction. In all such situations, we emphasize the confidential nature of the information being shared.

Consumer Opt-In and Information Sharing

We do not share nonpublic personal information with third parties for purposes other than those described above unless you provide affirmative consent where required by law. When applicable, consumers may opt in to the sharing of information by providing written, electronic, or verbal authorization. You may revoke your consent at any time, subject to legal or contractual restrictions, by contacting our office.

No mobile opt-in or text message consent will be shared with third parties or affiliates.

Protecting the Confidentiality and Security of Current and Former Clients' Information

We retain records relating to the professional services we provide in order to better assist you with your future needs and, where required, to comply with professional, legal, and regulatory obligations. To safeguard your nonpublic personal information, we maintain physical, electronic, and procedural security measures that comply with applicable federal and state regulations and with our professional standards.
